

Ed. D. Human Resource and Workforce Development Education 2020-2021 Assessment Report

Assessment of Doctoral Student Learning Direct Methods

1. Comprehensive examinations: Seven current Ed. D. students passed the written and oral comprehensive examination this academic year.
2. Successful Dissertation Defense: Two doctoral students successfully defended their dissertations this academic year.

Indirect Methods

1. Course grades and written or oral assignment results: see above.
2. Student feedback on course evaluations: not reported by faculty.
3. Dissertation Committee feedback not reported by faculty.

Program Assessment Supportive to Student Learning Outcomes Results

1. Ten new doctoral applicants were admitted to the HRWD program in Summer/Fall 2021 and seven new applicants were admitted for Spring 2021. There are a total of 33 students currently in the program. Two new doctoral applicants have already applied for the Spring 2022 semester.
2. Another survey will be initiated, with possible assistance of the UA Alumni Association, about effectiveness of our HRD graduate programs for those who graduated during the last five years. Results from a prior survey through the UA Alumni Association yielded limited results.
3. The HRWD program underwent a full program review during Fall 2017.
4. One faculty member left in the summer of 2020. A new faculty member has been hired and will join the program in August, 2021.

5. The GRE was waived for applicants due to COVID-19.
