

Ed. D. Human Resource and Workforce Development Education 2021-2022 Assessment Report

Assessment of Doctoral Student Learning Direct Methods

1. Comprehensive examinations: Five current Ed. D. students passed the written and oral comprehensive examination this academic year.
2. Successful Dissertation Defense: Three doctoral students successfully defended their dissertations this academic year.

Indirect Methods

1. Course grades and written or oral assignment results: see above.
2. Student feedback on course evaluations: not reported by faculty.
3. Dissertation Committee – currently there are 11 students who have completed their comprehensive exams and are working on their dissertations.

Program Assessment Supportive to Student Learning Outcomes Results

1. Eleven new doctoral applicants were admitted to the HRWD program in Summer/Fall 2021 and seven new applicants were admitted for Spring 2022. There are a total of 44 students currently active in the program. There are currently 11 students in the dissertation stage.
2. Another survey will be initiated, with possible assistance of the UA Alumni Association, about effectiveness of our HRD graduate programs for those who graduated during the last five years. Results from a prior survey through the UA Alumni Association yielded limited results.
3. The HRWD program underwent a full program review during Fall 2017.
4. A new faculty member was hired and joined the program in August, 2021.

5. The GRE was waived for applicants due to COVID-19.
