

Academic Calendar

Five-Year Calendar of Academic Dates

The five-year calendar of academic dates for the university is established through the campus governance process beginning with a recommendation of the Calendar Committee of the Faculty Senate. The calendar is normally extended each year through this process so that five-years of academic dates are available.

Academic dates established here are for the first and last days of classes for fall, spring, summer I, and summer II terms, intersessions, dates for the week of Spring Break, dates for the Academic Festival Week (beginning on the Monday of the third week of April but no sooner than April 12 and no later than April 18), date for the Fall Break (9th week of the Fall semester on a Monday and a Tuesday), Thanksgiving Break (Wednesday before Thanksgiving), dates for Dead Day and Final Exams for fall and spring terms, and the dates for Commencement each spring and fall. The Final Exam schedule is defined by campus policy. The dates for Commencement exercises are set consistent with the day and week (second Saturday in May and third Saturday in December) traditionally reserved for the Fayetteville campus in the schedule for all UA campuses. Spring Break will be set on the Monday of the 38th week of the school year with the first week of July that begins on a Sunday counted as the first week (Act 46 of the 88th General Assembly). Fall and spring terms typically include 73 class days each; summer 6-week terms typically include at least 29 class days, and summer 5-week terms typically include at least 24 days. Current academic calendars are available at <http://registrar.uark.edu/506.php>.

Holiday Schedule

The holiday schedule is revised and issued early each year for University of Arkansas campus employees beginning with July 1. The following holidays are included: Independence Day, Labor Day, Thanksgiving Day, Thanksgiving Holiday (normally proclaimed by the Governor each year on the Friday after Thanksgiving), Christmas Eve, Christmas Day, employee's birthday, Veteran's Day, New Year's Day Holiday, Martin Luther King's Birthday, George Washington's Birthday/Daisy Gatson Bates' Day, and Memorial Day.

Holidays declared by Governor's Proclamation will be observed by departments not involved in patient care activities. When a holiday (except December 25) falls on a Saturday, the preceding Friday is observed; when December 25 falls on a Saturday, the following Monday is observed. When a holiday except December 24 falls on Sunday, the following Monday is observed." The University does not hold classes on the Monday and Tuesday of the 9th week of the Fall semester, the Wednesday preceding Thanksgiving and during the week of Spring Break. However, only the Friday of Spring Break is a holiday for employees. During the other days, University administrative offices are open. The current holiday schedule for the UA can be reached through <http://vcfa.uark.edu/Documents/4092.pdf>.

The employee's birthday, Veteran's Day, and George Washington's Birthday/Daisy Gatson Bates' Day are typically observed as part of a Christmas break or as the Friday of Spring Break, and the university continues operations when the latter two holidays are traditionally observed.
